

LEADERS ENDORSE
HOOVER'S PROGRAM
FOR PROSPERITYProposed As Means of Lifting America Out of Economic Depression

A LENGTHY CONFERENCE

Suggestions from President,
With Others Discussing
Proposals

By William K. Hutchinson
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—A stupendous prosperity program, proposed by President Hoover as a means of lifting America out of economic depression, was endorsed in principle today by Congressional leaders of both major parties.

The program was presented to ranking Senators and Representatives by the President at a three-hour conference in the White House last night.

Briefly, the program included:

1. Mobilization of financial resources of the nation by the bankers themselves, through creation of a $500,000,000 institution to stabilize the banking structure of the country. This great banking corporation is necessary, the President said, to offset the "wholly unjustifiable withdrawal of currency from some banks" and to maintain the liquidation of all banks in case of necessity. All banks were invited to help finance it.

2. An appeal to local bankers to "make some advances on the security of the assets of closed banks (in their communities) or to take over some of these assets" in order that partial dividends may be paid to depositors in advance of the legal liquidation.

3. Appropriation of $50,000,000 by Congress to strengthen the resources of Federal land banks through the purchase of additional stock, in order to furnish additional credits to farmers at low interest rates.

4. Amendment of the Federal Reserve Act to liberalize its rediscount provisions.

5. Creation, if necessary, of a finance corporation, "similar in character and purpose to the War Finance Corporation, with available funds sufficient for any legitimate call in support of credit."

6. Announcement by the President that he would propose to Premier Laval, of France, an extension of the war debt moratorium when they meet late this month. The conference declined to be bound by any agreement reached between Mr. Hoover and Laval, but promised to give it fair consideration if he submits a proposal for extension to Congress.

The President also appealed to the American people to set an example to the rest of the world by exhibiting a confidence in the integrity of the country. In his formal statement, he expressed considerable agitation over the withdrawal of currency from banks. He declared such "runs" were a "definite impediment to agricultural and business recovery" and "wholly unjustifiable" in view of the strength of the American banking situation.

All the suggestions for restoration of prosperity came from the President. His audience of Congressional leaders merely discussed the proposals, agreed to them in principle but re-used to be bound by any detailed plans which may be submitted later to Congress.

There was no discussion of disarmament, reparations, current suggestions for limiting short-selling on the stock market or a special session of Congress.

Young Women Honor Friend
On Birthday Anniversary

Several young women of Bristol gave a party in honor of Miss Ida Ryan, of Trenton, whose 19th birthday anniversary occurred Friday. The party was held at the Emilie dance hall, and a delightful evening was spent in dancing. The hall was attractively decorated for the occasion, with red, white and blue crepe paper, and favors for the guests were red, white and blue baskets filled with candy. Refreshments were served. Miss Ryan was the recipient of many pretty gifts.

Those enjoying this affair were: Misses Francine, Gertrude and Margaret McGee, Katharine Griffin, Ailes Burns, Katharine Ferry, Ann McGinley, Mary Fallon, Dorothy McElroy, Noreen Whyatt, Lewis Paul, Joe Smythe, Philip Pauline, Edgar Leech and George Moore, of Bristol; Miss Ida Ryan, George Jarvis, Howard Jarvis, Pete Mour and John Holland, of Trenton, and Harry Jenks, of Edgely.

Edgely Needlework Guild
To Sponsor Card Party

Edgely branch of the Needlework Guild of America will sponsor a card party at the residence of Mrs. Thomas G. Hawkes on the afternoon of October 22nd.

It is planned to make this affair very attractive and home-made cakes will be offered for sale.

CHANGE SUPPER DATE

Date for the Mothers' Association supper has been changed from October 22nd to October 29th.

Ice Cream Manufacturing

ATHLETICS READY TO BATTLE FOR LEADThink Maybe Walberg Will Do the Hurling This Afternoon

"A'S" EXPECT TO WIN

By FRANK G. MENKE
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—The passing policeman today paused in his parade and commented:

"Well, we done some deciding."

"Who decided—what?"

"Why, us Athletics," he returned.

"We was in kind of a muddle. We didn't know whether we was ball-players or matinee idols. So we decided yesterday afternoon that baseball is the racket we should stick at and you seen how we blackjacked them Cardinals."

"Now, we know we gotta play ball with all we've got to play with, and when we're doing that we're just as liable to put a bomb under Hallahan and Grimes as we did under the other guys Gabby Street sic'd onto us."

"Who'll you pitch this afternoon?" I asked.

"Well, plenty of palookas have it all figured out that it will be Walberg. Maybe it will be Walberg. But why should it be. He's a lefty, ain't he? So is Grove. Now this Grove went up against the Cards twice and they cracked him for 23 hits in 17 innings, didn't they. So what's the use of experimenting with another lefty after the way they banged up the best southpaw in any league? So, the way I see it, I think we ought to start Hoyt, who is an experienced fellow, or maybe we even could take a chance on Mahaffey. They're both right-handers and judgin' from what the Cards have not done to Earnshaw, I reckon a right-hander is the correct choice."

"You afraid of Hallahan?"

"No," replied the Law. "I'll tell you why. He was a wild man when he come into the big league and, although he's tame now as a regular thing, you never can tell about lefties."

"But that was last week, see? This is today. Hall, hall, the gang's all here again. We're just a rough, tough lot of ballplayers now, realizing we've got the fight of our careers ahead of us if we want to win this Series. When we're that way those Cards will

Hon. Charles Edwin Fox
To Speak at Scout Dinner

Hon. Hiram H. Keller, president judge, Common Pleas Court of Bucks County, and general chairman of the Boy Scout campaign to raise $50,000 for the camp and maintenance fund for the Bucks County Boy Scouts, announced today that the Hon. Charles Edwin Fox, former District Attorney of Philadelphia county, a member of the Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs, chairman of board of directors of Glen Mills Schools, and chairman of the commission to study all laws relating to child welfare and to suggest revision and amendments to the statutes of Pennsylvania, will be the guest of honor and speaker at the opening dinner of the Boy Scout campaign on Friday evening, at 7 o'clock, at the Salem Reformed Church, Doylestown.

The members of the general campaign organization are very much gratified at being able to secure Mr. Fox on this occasion. Mr. Fox is a man of outstanding reputation and an able speaker. The entire working organization of three hundred men has been invited to meet Mr. Fox.

The following endorsement has just been received from Mr. C. Wilson Roberts, a prominent attorney of Philadelphia and a resident of Southampton: "Of course I need not point out to you the advantages and merits of the Boy Scout movement generally, but I cannot refrain at this time from expressing my admiration of the Boy Scout plan and work as a whole. The activity of the Bucks County Council of Boy Scouts throughout the whole county has been reflected in our section in a marked degree. Numerous troops have been instituted and all of them are being enthusiastically supported by the boys and by the citizens generally. The Boy Scout movement has come to stay and is bound to measurably increase its influence for good not only among the boys but in civic life generally."

MRS. HANNAH M. DURHAM, VICE-PRESIDENT OF PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF REPUBLICAN WOMEN,
EAGERLY LISTENED TO AT BUCKS CO. MEETINGCandidates for County Office
Are Introduced by Judge
Calvin S. Boyer

(By Staff Correspondent)

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 7.—A talk on the "game" of Politics by Mrs. Hannah M. Durham, vice-president and director of the Pennsylvania State Council of Republican Women, was one of the main program numbers at the fall meeting of Bucks County Council of Republican Women at the Doylestown Country Club yesterday.

Mrs. Durham's address, and introduction of Republican candidates for county office by Judge Calvin S. Boyer attracted 125 women to the afternoon meeting.

The woman speaker at the second session of the day, one of the foremost women in politics in Lehigh County, was enthusiastically received, her lively and enlightening talk being eagerly listened to by representatives of her sex from all parts of Bucks County.

The "game" of politics was likened by Mrs. Durham to contract bridge, with: Groups of men and women cutting for partners in each county, and then working, or in other terms "playing the game," together; learning of each others' signals; estimating hands in order to evaluate strength; act of discarding the "cards" that hamper; playing of the "game" by a system.

"I am always sorry when the women overlook their 'hands,' and wish to run for office when their chosen duties are not thoroughly understood," continued the speaker. Then, referring to "discarding," she told that "one of the hardest things for women to learn in this 'game' is to discard those things which hamper. We must learn to judge the essentials and the unessentials." The "system" of play spoken of was likened to a political chart which all members of the party might go by.

"We have 20,000 women in the State organization," the gathering was informed. "There are all shades of Republican thought in the women's State organization. We should be thankful for this fact, as we benefit by the views of all."

The manner in which the State organization functions was briefly gone over; and high tribute was paid to President Hoover. "President Hoover is a splendid type of man to have at the helm of our nation, and especially so in these trying times. He shows excellent judgment in time of emergency, and has for many years been a most important figure in the affairs of the nation." The humanitarian side of the chief executive's nature was well brought out, and his attributes as an engineer likewise pointed to with pride.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer, himself a candidate for re-election, presented the following candidates for county office to the women during the afternoon meeting: Register of Wills, Joseph Palmer, Langhorne; treasurer, Leidy M. Landis, Plumstead Township; recorder of deeds, Harry Kelly, Chalfont; clerk of orphans' court, John Thompson, Point Pleasant; clerk of quarter sessions, Theodore J. Yochum, Kirkcubbin; county surveyor, Amos K. Kirk, Wycombe; county commissioners, Norman Reinsider, Richlandtown, and John S. Roberts, Jr., Bristol; directors of poor, William P. Newbold, Middletown Township, and Mrs. (Continued on Page 6)

DRIVE IS INAUGURATED
AGAINST BOOTLEG "GAS"Costs Commonwealth Thousands of Dollars in Taxes, Says Lieutenant Ruch

PURCHASED IN JERSEY

An intensive drive against farmers and dealers who have been purchasing gasoline in New Jersey and hauling it into Pennsylvania for resale, without payment of taxes, has been inaugurated by the Pennsylvania State Highway Patrol, according to Lieutenant Ruch, in charge of the detail at South Langhorne.

Bootleg gas, according to Ruch, has cost the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania thousands of dollars in taxes, and the interstate traffic in the fuel has reached alarming proportions. Anyone caught violating the gasoline law is subject to a fine of $2,000, he said.

Many Bucks county farmers who have purchased gasoline in New Jersey, where it is cheaper, claim that the fuel is for use in their own automobiles and tractors, and is not resold at a profit to motorists. Lieutenant Ruch declares, however, that farmers buying gasoline in large quantities must apply for a dealer's license and post a $2,500 bond with the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue.

In order to check up on the bootlegging of gasoline, Lieutenant Ruch has stationed State officers at all important bridges spanning the Delaware River between New Jersey and Pennsylvania in Bucks county.

The bridges where the violations are being checked are those at Bristol (Continued on Page 6)

P. M. A. A.

W. L. BENDON SPEAKS

Pupils at both the high school building and the Wood street school building yesterday watched with eager eyes as Walter L. Bendon, associate field director of Philadelphia Model Aeroplane Association, gave a demonstration of miniature airplanes in flight.

The first exhibition occurred at the high school structure, and the second at the Wood street building. Mr. Bendon had come to Bristol at the request of Miss Effie H. Watson, and Superintendent Howard E. James.

Mr. Bendon stated that the construction of model-aircraft should be especially interesting to Bristol boys and girls owing to the natural aeronautical environment in the borough, the Keystone Aircraft Corporation being located here.

"Boys and girls here who have a leaning toward airplanes should have advantages not possessed by others in different communities."

"And with the help given by the P. M. A. A. in furnishing plans for various models, the work should progress very rapidly. The first ship to be built by any beginner is the simple Baby R. O. G. one."

"This model will enable its builder to gain valuable experience in handling and adjusting. When the builder progresses so that he is able to build more advanced ships he should try to

The committee headed by Edward Gallagher announced that they plan holding rhum tournaments each month during the fall and winter months.

TUMBLERS LEAD TREAT
THAT AWAITS FATHERSProf. Wm. J. Herrmann Will Appear With His Students
Tomorrow Night

BIG SURPRISE IN STORE

If the men of Bristol could only realize the wonderful treat which has been prepared for them at the meeting of the Fathers' Association, to be held in the high school auditorium, tomorrow evening, the room would be filled to capacity.

Professor William J. Herrmann, who conducts a physical training institute in the Keith Theatre building, in Philadelphia, will furnish the entertainment and will have with him 25 students from his institute, most of whom are champions in the particular course in which they have been trained.

The group of athletes will be led by Prof. Herrmann's son, William J. Herrmann, Jr., who is tumbling champion of America, present title-holder and three times winner of the National Championship of America. Young Herrmann will lead the American tumbling team at the Olympics next year, to be held at Los Angeles, California. This attraction alone should be of sufficient interest to the men to bring out a capacity crowd.

But in addition to the presence of this accomplished young man, who has won the championship title of America before reaching the age of 21 years, Prof. Herrmann will be accompanied by the following artists:

Betty Protz, girl tumbling champion, present title-holder, and three-time winner of the Middle Atlantic Girls' Tumbling Championships.

Nellie Coulter, present title-holder and three-time winner of the Middle Atlantic Championships Artistic Acrobatics.

Mary Moss, Middle Atlantic Championships, all around tumbling and artistic acrobatics for girls under ten years of age and present title holder, 1931 Middle Atlantic Championships.

Dotty Nuttle, Middle Atlantic Champion, all around tumbling and artistic acrobatics for girls under 9 years of age.

Cissie Nolan, Middle Atlantic Champion, all around tumbling and artistic acrobatics for girls under 8 years of age and place winner Middle Atlantic Junior Championships.

Georgianna Sees, Middle Atlantic Champion, tumbling and artistic acrobatics for girls under 7 years of age. Helen Brady, Middle Atlantic Champion, tumbling and artistic acrobatics for girls under 6 years of age.

Mickey Bradley, Middle Atlantic Champion, tumbling and artistic acrobatics for girls under 5 years of age. June Blake, Middle Atlantic Champion, artistic acrobatics for girls under 4 years of age.

Master Joey Riser, Middle Atlantic Champion tumbling for boys under 6 years of age, and place winner in the 1931 Middle Atlantic Men's Tumbling Championship.

Loretta Grace Roth, artistic acrobatics.

Blanche Roth, song and acrobatic dance.

Rita Rackmill, high kicking dance.

Lucy Frydrych, acrobatic dance.

Letty Henry, artistic acrobatics.

Gladys Gardner, song and dance.

Mildred Jous, song and dance.

THE MELANCHOLY DAYS

Everybody kicks about the weather, but, as Mark Twain so sagely observed, nothing is ever done about it. Nothing, that is, except to inflict upon the strangely submissive male sex the order to don straw hats on May 15, and to take 'em off on September 15.

The old thing that the salesman said would last a lifetime because it was a Panama has gone through another season's hard campaigning. It has got flappy at the brim again, and there are stains upon it.

Along about the middle of July, the thing was such a public nuisance that the neighbors began to talk, and your wife sneaked it off one Saturday afternoon and had it cleaned and blocked for you.

But such operations work no permanent good. A straw hat loves dirt about as much as a small boy loves it. The day after it was cleaned it blew off, and the neighbors began talking again. This time you were adamant, or at least what you sounded as if it were spelled something like that. You were going to wear that hat all season. So the goodly wife got out an old-smelling bottle of straw hat cleaner, confiscated your tooth brush and gave the hat a going-over.

So you forgot it. You forgot that the neighbors snickered when you passed by their porches of an evening. You forgot that when you hung your hat up in a public place other people snatched theirs from the hooks as if afraid you were going to attempt a switch. The leather band was just becoming set to your head, and the hat was comfortable.

Whiff! Off comes your hat! Not a plumed wind this time, but rule, custom, convention, tradition. You resolve firmly to wear your hat a day beyond that arbitrary date, September 15. But at the last minute your nerve fails, and you rush to a furnishings store, and buy a hat.

GANDHI CREATES ANOTHER FEAR

READ THIS FIRST

Frank Severn, after an attempt to retrieve the lost Czarina Rubies for the girl to whom they rightfully belong, returns to England from Russia in desperate fear. His friend, Jim Wynter, and his lawyer, Felix Sant, rush to Severn's remote country place to help him, but Severn already has been kidnapped and carried away in an automobile to the night.

Wynter returns to London, and to fulfill a promise, attends a roulette party. There he finds Katharine Faring, to whom Severn had introduced him two years before in New York, and whom he had not been able to forget. Katharine loses a large sum of money. When she quits playing, Wynter presents himself, recalling that in New York he had attended a party in celebration of her success as a concert violinist.

NOW GO ON

CHAPTER IX

"But—but haven't you heard?" Katharine Faring said with a little catch of her breath.

"Heard what? I've been out of England so long—lost touch, you know."

He could only just catch the whispered, faltered words:

"I—I have given up my career."

And he looked at her in surprise.

"Or, rather, it has given me up."

Her voice quivered out of control. She suddenly averted her face, moved past him toward the door. His eyes followed her pityingly as she slipped out of the room.

Her career finished—this girl who had created a furore in New York, who had sprung to fame almost in a night that was clear, though she had told him nothing else. That tragic pain he had seen in the dark eyes haunted Jim Wynter as he walked back to the table.

Milly was still having wonderful luck. Her eyes were alight with excitement. Malin was losing, of course, but Wynter had an idea that he wouldn't lie awake that night worrying about Malin's losses. He lit a cigaret and strode out through one of the long windows on to the balcony; the cool autumn night, the soft starlit darkness, were a pleasant change from the atmosphere in the room, the glare of too many lights. He had only shown up at the Hildrens' tonight because of a promise to Milly; with that worrying mystery of Severn's disappearance on his mind he had felt in no mood to join in the play—and somehow still less so now.

"What damned rough luck!" Jim Wynter said to himself, thinking of what Katharine Faring had just told him.

To Katharine it had been a relief to slip away from the others—and from this friend of Frank Severn's who was linked with those days of her short-lived triumph.

Just then she wanted above everything to be alone. At roulette that night she had lost far more than she could afford—more than thirty pounds. Not so long ago, before the bottom had dropped suddenly out of her world, such a sum would have seemed negligible. But now—

Why had she let herself be tempted, she was asking herself desperately, been so mad as to hope to double those thirty odd pounds on the chance of a spinning ivory ball? The girl gave a little shiver.

The room where the women guests had taken off their wraps was unlighted. Just for a moment as she passed into its sheltering darkness, Katharine's enforced self-control almost deserted her. But she caught herself up with a sob on the brink of that almost irresistible hysterical impulse that threatened to overwhelm her. Above everything, for her pride's sake she must not break down. Tonight she was feeling suddenly at the end of her courage, beaten, with no more fight left in her. But she had to face all those eyes in the room again; they must not know that she had been crying.

She turned at the sudden sound of footsteps. It was Lester Malin who had broken in upon her solitude.

Abruptly she switched on the light; she cooled her face with eau de cologne, dabbed it with powder. "It's as though you were born under some evil star," she whispered to her white reflection in the mirror. And the dark troubled eyes seemed to be looking back into the past, touched with poignant memories.

One of those memories that had burned itself ineffaceably on her mind, went back to the days before the brief-lived success had come to her.

NIGHTMARE

She had Russian blood in her on her mother's side, and on her father's death, shortly before the war, she had been taken to her mother's country, not yet in her teens, to study the violin under a famous maestro there—was still in Russia when three years later the red flame of revolution had swept over the country. Relatives and friends had been dragged off to prison or death, Katharine and her mother had lived in hiding for months that had been like some grim nightmare, before at last, almost by a miracle as it had seemed, an Englishman, Frank Severn's friend, had come to their help, had at great personal risk effected their escape to America.

Over there Katharine had continued her study of the violin. At 21 her brilliant promise was already justifying the adoption of music as a profession. Two years later she had seemed on the threshold of a dazzling career—acclaimed, courted. A big continental tour had been arranged for this new violinist. And then with shattering suddenness had come that motoring accident, that injury to her wrist which had baffled the finest surgical skill. . . . and her career gone like a blown-out candle flame, as though she had been born under some evil star. Katharine turned impatiently away from the mirror. She made her way slowly back to the roulette room. She could not, of course, slip away, as she would have liked, without taking leave of her hostess.

The small adjoining room, where cocktails were provided for the Hildrens' guests, happened for the moment to be empty. She paused for a moment, half tempted by the solitude, she found herself shrinking oddly from facing all those eyes in the big room beyond as though nothing had happened.

ANXIETY

But not only had she to bid good-night to her hostess; for a very definite reason Katharine was eager to ask a question of Frank Severn's friend, Wynter, whom she had run up against so unexpectedly that night—a question concerning Frank Severn.

This son of the man who more than ten years ago had assisted the escape of her mother and herself from bolshevist Russia was a friend who had not fallen away, as so many had done, when from being a celebrity she had become a nobody again. It was his loyalty of friendship that had sent Frank to Russia months ago on that strange, secret errand, a dangerous enough errand, undertaken on her behalf—so dangerous that it had brought her a measureless relief to know he had got safely out of Russia again. Five weeks ago he had sent her word from the Continent, had told her that he was on his way home, would be bringing his news in person almost as soon as his letter reached her—and then a silence of weeks like an impenetrable wall.

What could his silence mean? And just now, when she needed a friend so much!

She turned at the sudden sound of footsteps. It was Lester Malin who had broken in upon her solitude, the heavy, sensual face lighting up as he saw her.

Katharine hated that smile of his. Her eyes were very cold as they met it.

THE BRISTOL COURIER

Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INFORMATION

All ads are restricted to their proper classification and to the regular Bristol Courier style of type. The publishers reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

Errors in advertising should be reported immediately. The Bristol Courier will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

Advertising ordered for irregular insertions takes the one time rate. No ad is taken for less than a basis of three lines. Count five average words to the line. An average word contains six letters.

Charged ads will be received by telephone, and if paid at the Bristol Courier office within seven days from the first day of insertion, cash rates will be allowed.

Ads ordered for three or six times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared, and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Special rates for yearly advertising upon request.

Careful attention given to mail orders.

BERLIN

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, Oct. 7.—The German language, rich in combinations and double-sworded words, is being subjected to an unprecedented distortion in the mud-slinging and frequently beer-bug-slinging strife that is thundering between the three major political groups: the Communists, the Fascists or Nazis, and the Socialist-Republicans.

The highest officials in the Reich, not excluding the venerable President and Field Marshal von Hindenburg, are targets of written and verbal attacks which in days gone by would have been met with challenges to duels. As it is, however, men in the limelight rarely resort even to libel suits, and when they do, it is usually against newspapers or political antagonists who accuse them of embezzlement of public funds. That is a touchy subject—at matter of honor. But when an official is called a murderer or assassin, nothing happens except a counter bombast to the effect that the perpetrator is called a blackguard.

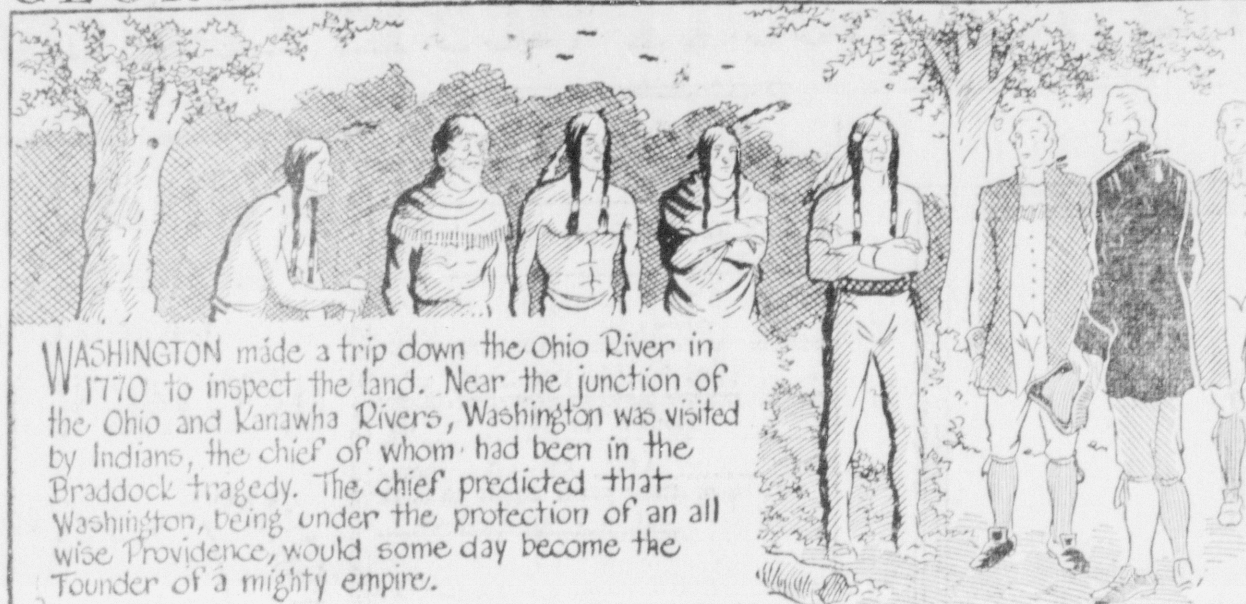

President von Hindenburg, who in the Nazi camp is regarded as a traitor because he didn't violate his oath of office and proclaim himself dictator, was attacked by a brown-shirted standard-bearer of the Fascists at a public meeting in the following terms:

"Hindenburg is like a child in school shortly before the summer vacation and each morning picks up a calendar to count the days that separate him from freedom. Hindenburg is also counting the days (up to the expiration of his term of office next year) when he'll be rid of this hokum."

A courageous member of the Young German Order forced his way to the platform and assailed the speaker for his slander against the President. He barely escaped with his life when the meeting broke up in a free-for-all fight. Every piece of furniture in the hall was smashed. Since then the Young Germans are called "Fire-spouters", and "Flame throwers."

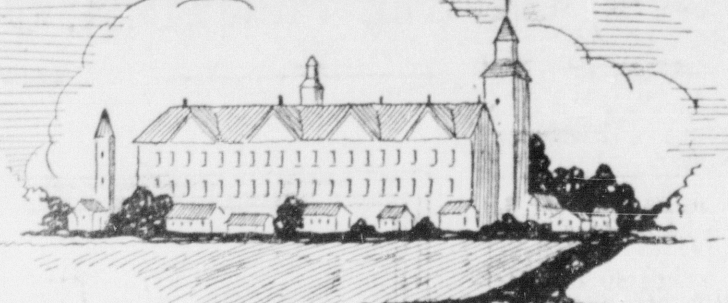

In Communist eyes all officials of the present Socialist-Catholic coalition dictatorship are "hang-men's vassals," "lackeys of blood-thirsty capitalists," and "red-handed devils whose horns are filled down every time they get a hair-cut."

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS

WASHINGTON made a trip down the Ohio River in 1770 to inspect the land. Near the junction of the Ohio and Kanawha Rivers, Washington was visited by Indians, the chief of whom had been in the Braddock tragedy. The chief predicted that Washington, being under the protection of an all-wise Providence, would some day become the founder of a mighty empire.

By James W. Brooks

WASHINGTON had now begun putting his domestic affairs in order for the great duty soon to follow. In 1773, he journeyed to New York to put his stepson, John Parke Custis in King's College, now Columbia University. The stepson taxed the patience of his step-father. He did not remain long in college, and shortly after returning to Mount Vernon, the youth married Eleanor Calvert in 1774, thus adding to Washington's domestic responsibilities.

JOHN PARKE CUSTIS

"It is no laughing matter," I continued to my friend fifteen minutes later. "But somebody ought to laugh right at the beginning."

"The Grzesinsky cossacks," as the Communists call the police under Chief Grzesinsky, soon cleared the street.

THEY'RE Milder. The best Turkish and Domestic tobacco that money can buy is put into Chesterfield. Chesterfield tobacco is the finest-textured, the smoothest and ripest that grows—ripened and sweetened in the sunshine, cured right by the farmer and aged right for two years in wooden hogsheads. Mellow—and wonderfully mild!

THEY TASTE BETTER. These mild, smooth tobaccos are put together exactly right. The aroma of Turkish, the mellow sweetness of Domestic—blended and cross-blended. How it's done is Chesterfield's secret—but millions know how much better it tastes!

THEY'RE PURE. Everything that goes into Chesterfield is tested by expert chemists. The purest, finest cigarette paper made; a clean, tight-sealed package. "Pure as the water you drink."

THEY SATISFY. The package... neat, clean. The cigarettes... well-filled. The paper... pure white. And with your very first puff, you notice they taste better. Pleasing and satisfying—Chesterfields just seem to suit you, right down to the ground.

Four hits—four good things about every Chesterfield cigarette. Remember: They are Milder—Taste Better—Pure—Satisfy.

GOOD...they've got to be good!

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30.—After ten years of correcting imperfect features with make-up, Ernie Westmore, R-K-O expert, years to find a feminine star with:

The hair of Jean Harlow, the forehead of Dolores Del Rio, the eyes of Marlene Dietrich, the nose of Billie Dove, the mouth of Irene Dunn and the chin of Marion Davies.

Or it would make Harlow if he could discover a masculine star with:

The hair of Gilbert Roland, the forehead of Clark Gable, the eyes of Ricardo Cortez, the nose of John Barrymore, the mouth of Ronald Coleman and the chin of Richard Dix.

These things being impossible, he would be content even if all stars presented as few makeup problems as Irene Dunn and John Barrymore.

In the meanwhile, he'll take them as they come.

HE WON HIS POINT.

Sam Mintz, who was born in Boston but eats Russian caviar, goes way back for the story of the Hebraic gentleman who was sentenced to 50 lashes for writing scurrilous articles about the Czar.

In terror of the whip and knowing human nature, the convicted man offered to pay a bribe if the Cossack would make the blows light. To this, the jailer agreed, setting the price at 1,000 rubles.

Try as he would, however, the Hebraic gentleman could raise only 600. After much pleading, the Cossack took this sum.

True to the bargain, he curled the first 49 lashes so deftly that the victim hardly felt them. The fiftieth, however, was a terrific blow.

Recovering consciousness, the former prisoner sought the Cossack out. "Say," he demanded, "what was the idea?"

"Oh, that?" replied the Cossack. "I just wanted you to realize what a bargain you were getting."

LATEST GOSSIP.

Houston Branch had an odd experience. He was writing a story for Warners about an island where there was no extradition. For sake of authenticity, he wired the Department of Justice asking if such a place existed. The answer came the other night in the shape of two federal men who insisted on looking at all of Houston's papers. Finally, they accepted his explanation and went away...

There is a sound expert at United Artists named Jack Noyes... In two weeks now, Loretta Young leaves Hollywood on her first trip to New York. She was born in Salt Lake City, and came to Los Angeles at the age of 5.

The farthest east she has been is Denver, which she visited with her ex-husband, Grant Withers... Forrest Stanley, whom you haven't heard of for some time, is making a picture at Universal... When George Arliss passes through Washington, he will be a guest of President Hoover... Larry Tibbett goes the old wheeze one better and practices whinge in his outdoor pool. It's the truth... Director Lloyd Bacon has peddled his yacht and now goes in for polo... John Drinkwater is submitting a new play to Uncle Carl Laemmle.

EVEN THE COP LAUGHED.

The other day a police detective showed up at Paramount and asked to see Stuart Erwin. Escorted to the set, he seemed surprised to have his wish gratified.

"That's funny," he told Erwin. "A man who looks exactly like you has just been killed."

"Well," said Stew, "he's a dead ringer now."

IT TAKES MORE THAN THAT.

Hollywood has asked many times: "Who will fill Valentino's shoes?" Oddly enough, an actor named Alfred Cordova has just accomplished this. Cast as the leader of a Russian vaudeville troupe, he reported to the wardrobe department for a costume. All efforts, however, failed to discover one. As the "delicious" company needed the actor right away, a rush order was sent to the Western Costume Company.

The search came to a dramatic end when they finally unearthed the Russian uniform Radolph Valentino wore in "The Eagle." It fit, boots and all, and Cordova will wear it in the picture.

THROATS ARE TO BE COVERED IN LATEST OF THE WINTER GOWNS

Nearly Normal Necklines Are Novel Features for Day and Evening Wear

By ALICE LANGELEIR

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS.—Nearly normal necklines are novel features of both day and evening gowns for the coming winter wear. Throats ought not to be sore this season for the smartest women are covering 'em up, at least in the front.

Sports and daytime dresses have little turnover collars or button up very close. Cowl drapes are to be seen on a great many and have a tendency to make the throat.

V-necked afternoon dresses have scarves that are folded or draped close to the collar-bone.

Evening gowns are definitely higher in front and very often in the back as well. Madame Vionnet is covering up the back, even though the wearer might have passed her entire summer acquiring a beautiful tan. She Tollmann puts a new type of decolletage on a cerise satin gown. The square neckline in the front has square straps which broaden and continue across the shoulders in a wide loose fold.

Patou and Lucien Lelong are stressing the low evening back with crossed or strapped ribbons. Another designer makes draped scarf treatments, sometimes one-sided, forming a berth over one shoulder and a scarf over the other. The old-fashioned off-the-shoulder decolletage is also to be seen, especially on the new wool evening gown. Dinner gowns with sleeves have simple or square cuts and going very modest.

Heavy satin and velvet gowns are trimmed with Chantilly, Venetian thread and other laces that are quaint. Some of them have fur trimming as well. Patou puts picturesque pockets in his new evening frocks, not the old-fashioned pocket variety, but little patches or insets on one hip. Redfern strikes the quaint note in

PEP PUT INTO PARIS STREETS BY NEW AND PICTURESQUE FROCKS

Dolman, Puff Sleeves, and Fur Mantelet Are to Be Seen

By Alice Langeleir

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Picturesque fashions are putting pep into Paris streets this season. They come by way of the modified bustle, the dolman, the puff and leg o' mutton sleeve and the little fur mantelet usually made of curly astrakhan.

Then there is the old-fashioned taffeta shirt-waist almost as stiff as the proverbial board, to wear with tailleur suits and often trimmed with lace or velvet ribbon, with slim 1932 boneless lines. Fitted waistcoats button up the front and are often made of fine old-fashioned brocades.

At-Home Pajamas

These special creations from Paris are the first models of a new series of styles of at-home pajamas and divided skirts which, it is said, will be very popular this coming season. The pajamas are in light blue with lemon-yellow jacket. The divided skirts are in pistachio green.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS TO OPEN HOCKEY SEASON

Working feverishly, despite the handicap of not having a practice field, the Bristol High School girls' hockey team is rapidly rounding into shape as the team members look toward their initial encounter with their foremost rivals of the season, Jenkintown. The tilt tomorrow afternoon will, incidentally, inaugurate the opening of the local current field hockey season.

Although only a few of the veterans, notably among whom are Olive and Enid Whyatt, Josie De Lissio, Isabelle Nills, Bobby Still and Adela Dogwillo, have returned from last year, the newcomers are capably filling their positions on the eleven with the ease and assurance of veterans.

Josie "Soap" De Lissio will lead this year's Cardinal and Gray eleven at the left halfback position. Josie has been a member of the varsity for three years and is one in whom a tough assignment like bringing a Big Gray eleven through an undefeated season can be entrusted.

This year Jenkintown will bring down one of the strongest aggregations in years, having already gained the enviable record of defeating Radnor by the score of 2 to 1. At the helm of the strong Jenkintown squad will be Marion Edwards, one of the flashiest center halfbacks in the Philadelphia Suburban Field Hockey League.

The schedule which Manager Rita Barnfield has drawn up for the local squad is as follows: Oct. 8, Jenkintown, at home; Oct. 20, Ambler, away; Oct. 27, Richboro, away; Oct. 29, Morrisville, away; Nov. 5, Abington, away; Nov. 10, George School, away; Nov. 17, Richboro, away.

BENSALEM LOSES GAME TO MORRISVILLE, 38-0

BENSALEM TWP. HIGH SCHOOL, Cornwells Heights, Oct. 7.—Bensalem high school opened its football season by opposing Morrisville high on Friday at Eddington field. Morrisville defeated Bensalem by the score of 38-0.

Bensalem players fought hard throughout the fray, despite the fact that they were outweighed from ten to fifteen pounds on the average. They had numerous opportunities to score, but everytime something seemed to happen, just as they were within ten yards of a touchdown, Bensalem's inability to take advantage of their opportunities was one of the biggest factors in their defeat. They played well but when the crucial moment came they failed. Although Morrisville was penalized very frequently during the last quarter, Bensalem just couldn't take advantage of it.

This is the second year that football has been a major sport at Bensalem. Many members of the varsity were lost by graduation.

The most outstanding players in the first game were: K. Kiwi and William Lang. Kiwi was continually breaking through Morrisville's line, but due to lack of proper interference he was unable to score. Lang played the position of tackle exceptionally well. He brought down the opponents again and again, due to his speed in reaching his man.

have to get themselves some good shock absorbers if they don't want to get run over and killed when we're rushing around them sacks."

"What about Martin?" I inquired.

"Oh, yes—funny thing about him," answered the paused policeman, preparing to pass along again on his beat.

"When we hear about him pullin' all that crook stuff in Saint Looey we think what we ought to do is nab him when he gets here and put him in the cooler. Anyway, we're all set to do that, when what do we find out but that right here in this town, where he is Public Enemy No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3, the fans go daffy about him. Yes, sir. They like to see him tearing around and stealing our bases, and us cops around this town ain't such siliers that we would make a pinch on a guy which is a hero."

"I wish," concluded the patrolman, in passing, "that this Martin would open a school and teach thieving and that some of our players would become scholars. We could stand having a few crooks graduated by Prof. Martin. Well, so long, allez oop and cheerio."

CONKLIN'S SPORT BOX

L. N. S. Sports Writer
By Les Conklin

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Captain Johnny Orsi of Colgate will be in line for first honors when the speediest ends of the 1931 football season are selected. In a recent game a Colgate back got off a 45-yard punt. Orsi tore down the field and caught it on the fly on the other team's three-yard line.

While many teams can boast of a triple-threat backfield player, there is a fellow they are calling the "quadruple threat back." He is Lou Kirn, veteran fullback. Coach Rip Miller, in line with his Notre Dame training, is trying to develop a back who can block in addition to kick, run and pass. Kirn seems to fit the bill.

Another fellow who might be called a quadruple threat is Bill Parriott, West Virginia left halfback and an ambidexterous gent. In addition to kicking and running, he bewilders the opposition by tossing forward passes with either hand.

Things looked rosy at Stanford when more than sixty candidates turned out for the freshman football squad. Then it was discovered that none of them ever had played fullback. A couple of halfbacks are being tried out for the post.

Sons of football players once famous in the Middle West are carrying out family griddiron traditions. Jack Heston, of Michigan, is a son of the great Willie. Paul Stagg, Chicago, is giving orders to the rest of the team and taking them from his dad, Amos Alonzo Stagg, famous Maroon coach. Pat Page, another Chicago coach, also has a son on the squad.

On the West Coast they are touting Toby Hunt, captain of the giant-killing St. Mary's eleven, as an all-American possibility. Hunt ripped the Fordham line to pieces last fall in one of the outstanding intersectional battles of the year.

many complimentary remarks. Mrs. Beans' efforts were much appreciated by her listeners.

The peace movement, and the march of the peace caravan across the United States from California to the Eastern States, was brought to the attention of the group by Miss Laura Anderson, of Doylestown. The gaining of the signatures of governors of 44 states, and those of thousands of other people by the peace advocates in their move for universal disarmament, was spoken of. The enthusiastic reception accorded the caravan by men's and women's clubs, Legionnaires, Scouts, and others throughout the various states, was mentioned.

"Our Council's Aims" was the subject allotted to Mrs. Henry E. Ancker, of Bristol, past-president of the county council. The Bristol woman referred to Bucks County as a "great spot in the wheel of Republicanism." She highly congratulated the council members on progress made during the past year, and upon its plans for the future.

Delegates named to the State conference of Republican women in Harrisburg next month, are: Mrs. John T. Cooper, Pineville; and Mrs. George Bennett, of Yardley; with Mrs. Henry E. Ancker, Bristol, and Mrs. Fred Beans, of Yardley, being the alternates. The May meeting of the council will occur at Sellersville.

The war on bootleg gas has become almost as intensive as that on the illicit liquor trade. In addition to the officers stationed at the bridges, the State Highway Patrol has put a gasoline launch into service on the Delaware River. The launch, capable of attaining high speed, has been patrolling the river between Trenton and the Delaware Capes, always on the lookout for gasoline bootleggers.

Officers assigned to the gasoline detail at the South Langhorne sub-station are Patrolmen M. B. McAfee, R. R. Snader, J. P. Culp and Patrick Fleming.

Lieutenant Ruch said that he would make a personal appeal to farm organizations in Bucks county for cooperation in halting the gasoline traffic.

enter the monthly meets conducted by the P. M. A. A. in Philadelphia."

After the demonstration, Miss Watson said that a group of the boys were "very much interested" in the construction of the tiny planes and that a chapter would probably be formed. "Last year several of our boys were members of a school club under the guidance of Mrs. Katherine Monroe, a teacher," she added. "We probably shall become affiliated with the P. M. A. A."

Mr. Bendon then visited the Wood street school, giving a similar exhibition and being greeted with a response equally as enthusiastic.

He explained that the first meet for P. M. A. A. members will be held either November 7 or 14. All competitors must possess the new 1931-32 membership cards, which are given here, and the men of Bristol who miss the opportunity to be present, will regret it for the rest of their lives. This will be one of the outstanding athletic performances that has ever been seen here, and will be talked about and referred to for years to come. The 400 young people of the junior high school who have been invited to be present, will see something that perhaps they may never have the opportunity of seeing again during the rest of their lives. Many of the young men in the senior high school have been in the habit of attending the meetings of the Fathers' Association, and President Runyon assures them that they will be welcome upon this occasion.

Following the acrobatic program, Prof. Herrmann has arranged a surprise for the men. If his plans can be carried out successfully, it will be a most extraordinary event, and something a town the size of Bristol could never hope to witness, unless it should come, as in the present instance, through the kindness of a man who enjoys the prominence and influence of Professor Herrmann.

The Fathers' Association Orchestra of 28 pieces will be present and favor with a number of popular selections. The yearly dues of $1.50 are payable at this meeting. The present membership of the Fathers' Association is 385, but anyone desiring to join may make application and be accepted at this meeting. All men in the town are cordially invited to come out to the meeting tomorrow evening and enjoy this refined but most extraordinary entertainment.

Two Sparkling Intersectionals

By HARDIN BURNLEY

MINNESOTA'S thundering herd will try to stamp on Stanford at Palo Alto, Cal., Saturday, while Georgia and Yale (bulldogs both) will tear into each other in the huge bowl-like pit at New Haven, Conn. There are two sparkling intersectionals for football fans soon after the start of the season!

Last year the Minnesotans and Stanford battled to a 0-0 deadlock. H. O. "Fritz" Crisler is supposed to be bringing a more formidable gang of Gophers to the Coast for Saturday's games. But they will have to be that to do better than last season against Glenn Warner's 1931 charges. Though this intersectional comes early in the schedules, it presents a fair gauge of Middle and Far West football. As such it merits critical attention nationally.

For the second successive year Georgia is going north aflame with the hope of beating Yale three times in succession. Two seasons ago the Blue went South to dedicate Georgia's new stadium and the Athens bulldogs chewed the New Haven variety to 15-0 shreds. In 1930 the Crackers (this year's captain, Austin Downes, totin' the ball) ran Yale's initial kickoff for a touchdown, finally winning the game, 18-14.

This Saturday, Georgia will face Old Eli with about the same team which was so brilliant last year. Besides Downes, there is the dazzling "Catfish" Smith, a remarkable end; Jack Roberts, who's battered Blue lines for two years at fullback; Spurgeon Chandler, who harried the ancient bulldog so much at halfback in 1930; the seasoned McWhorter at center; and a dozen other likely stars, including a Sullivan, Kelly, Gilmore and Moran.

The Athenians have had about two weeks' more practice than Capt. Albie Booth's bulldogs, and some even hint they'll take the Yale game almost as a breather! The Georgians will play Southern California in a post-season game and they have had contests ahead with North Carolina, N. Y. U., Tulane and Alabama. Perhaps the New Haven engagement will be but a tune-up, but when South battles North—well, it can't miss being a battle between fighting bulldogs in the Yale Bowl this Saturday... G-r-r-r-r-r-r!!!

While many teams can boast of a triple-threat backfield player, there is a fellow they are calling the "quadruple threat back." He is Lou Kirn, veteran fullback. Coach Rip Miller, in line with his Notre Dame training, is trying to develop a back who can block in addition to kick, run and pass. Kirn seems to fit the bill.

An amendment to the constitution which was passed, gives the council permission to conduct the fall meeting the first Tuesday in October or "any day in October the council sees fit." The stated time for this meeting has always been the first Tuesday. A resolution of respect was ordered spread upon the minutes, the memory of the late Margaretta T. Satterthwaite being thus honored.

Mrs. Hannah Leattor, of Doylestown, answered questions of the members regarding work of the county poor board.

In her always capable manner, Mrs. William R. Stuckert, of Newtown, told of a number of bills that have become laws, stressing in particular those that the Bucks County Council of Republican Women desired passed.

With the conclusion of the reading of a paper by Mrs. Fred W. Beans, Yardley, a review of "Facts of National and International Importance," the applause was prolonged. The manner in which news of the United States and the world at large during the past several months was reduced to a few words, and the able manner in which it was concisely presented, elicited
